2 child molesters get 10, 12 years with no appeal

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Two Jefferson County men have been sentenced to multiple years in prison in unrelated child molestation cases involving minors after pleading guilty in Jefferson County Circuit Court.

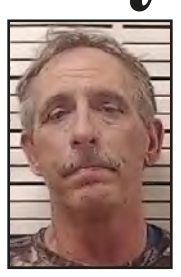
John R. Simmonds, 50, of Hanover, pleaded guilty to child molesting, a Level 4 felony, on June 12 and was sentenced on July 10 to 10 years in prison at a hearing before Jefferson Circuit Judge Donald J. Mote.

James Michael Robert O'Riley, 59, Madison, pleaded guilty to two counts of child molesting, both Level 4 felonies, on June 12 and was sentenced on July 17 to 12 years in prison at his hearing before Mote.

Both cases involve minors under the age of 6 who were under the care and control of the defendants. Under the plea agreement, Simmonds had a second charge of child molesting, a Level 1 felony that could have carried up to a 20-year prison sentence, dismissed. O'Riley's agreement allowed two of four Level 4 felony charges in his case to be dismissed. However, by agreeing to plead guilty, neither Simmonds nor O'Riley is eligible to appeal the conviction. Both are to have no further contact with their victims.

In passing sentence, Mote noted the severity of the charges, the young age of the victims and the fact that both were under the defendants' care and control as aggravating circumstances in his sentencing decision. The judge also said that while both men had pleaded guilty and showed remorse — both mitigating circumstances — the "aggravating circumstances heavily outweigh the mitigators" and that factored into his decision to impose lengthy sentences.

Simmonds



O'Riley

Both Simmonds and O'Riley told the judge they had previously or were at the time of their offense suffering from substance abuse disorders. However, Mote rejected both claims as mitigating factors in sentencing.

Simmonds and O'Riley both faced up to 12 years prison on each charge — to run either concurrent or consecutive — but under the judge's order Simmonds will serve 10 years and O'Riley 12 years on each charge to run concurrently. Simmonds' sentence was recommended by Chief Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Goode and accepted by Simmonds. O'Riley's sentence was recommended by Jefferson County Prosecutor David R. Sutter. Both men were represented by defense attorney R. Patrick Magrath.

O'Riley's previous criminal history of felony driving while intoxicated when he lived in Indianapolis, felony battery and a parole violation related to the battery charge were cited as factors in his longer sentence.

Both men have been in the Jefferson County Jail awaiting sentencing and will receive credit for that time served. Simmonds will be credited for 148 days served and 50 days earned for a total of 198 days credit against his 10-year sentence. O'Riley will be credited for 155 days served and 52 days earned for a total of 207 days credit against his 12-year sentence.

Yancey Denning, the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department detective who investigated the two cases, said the sentence both men received was "fair and just" under terms of their plea agreements approved by the families of each victim. Denning noted that pleading guilty spared the young victims the potential trauma of going to trial and the county the expense of further prosecuting the cases.

Dupont-Lancaster Fire Chief Canfield presented Sandberg, Global Awards

By TRENTON SCROGGINS
Special to the Courier

The Indiana Volunteer Firefighters Association honored Dupont-Lancaster Fire Chief George Canfield Thursday evening for his exceptional service and dedication to that firehouse.

Canfield received two prestigious awards — the Ollie C. Sandberg Mental Attitude Award and the 2019 Global Award — for dedication to the fire service.

"It's a big deal. Some of you for 50 years have been doing this," State Sen. Chris Garten (R-District 45) said at the meeting. "In the preamble it outlines domestic tranquility ... we cannot ensure domestic tranquility without our local fire departments. I cannot speak of bravery enough in the midst of all of you ... I am so appreciative of all of you answering the call..."

Canfield has been with Dupont-Lancaster Fire Department for more than 15 years, and has held numerous positions including chief, assistant chief and instructor for the department. Having grown up as a firefighter's son, like many others present at the ceremony, firefighting has played a major role in Canfield's life beginning at an early age. His father served 50 years as a firefighter.

During the award ceremony, several anonymous comments were read aloud, including one noting, "(Canfield) takes time to listen to everyone and help those that need help with whatever it is. (He) would give the shirt off his back to help you, never meets a stranger and is always ready to help the community, the fire department, and anyone that asks."

The Ollie C. Sandberg Award for mental attitude is presented annually in memory of Ollie Sandberg, a former very active member of the Prairieton Volunteer Fire Department. "The award is being given to honor those people who work a little harder than the others in their department to improve the fire service, their community and to promote the Indiana Volunteer Firefighter's Association," a description of the award said on the Indiana Volunteer Firefighters Association website.

Canfield also received the Global District Award for making a difference in his community and fire department, particularly for working to promote the betterment of both the firehouse and the area community.

The Indiana Volunteer Firefighter's Association website said that award, originally started around 1975 by Midwest Fire and Safety Equipment Company and called the "Midwest Award," was renamed the Global Award when Global Emergency Products purchased Midwest Fire Company in 2006.

Pushed to give a speech multiple times, Canfield simply said, "I appreciate everybody."

The firehouse filled with applause.

5 felony charges in domestic battery and strangulation

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

A Madison man is facing five felony charges — including criminal recklessness with a firearm — in a case involving criminal confinement, strangulation and battery of his fiancé and 2-year-old son at an apartment on Madison's hilltop on Saturday, July 13.

According to a probable cause affidavit, Timothy Turocy, 26, confined his fiancé and their son, waved or pointed a firearm in their direction, battered the woman in the presence of the child and strangled the woman by the throat or neck, all felonies. He is also charged with misdemeanor trespassing due to a previous domestic complaint related to the couple.

Turocy

Based on interviews conducted by Madison Police Officer Dylan Barnes, the woman said Turocy was "passed out" on their bed when she went to recharge his cellphone and the phone began receiving messages from a female unknown to her. One of the messages, the affidavit said, involved an intimate conversation between the woman and Turocy.

The affidavit said the woman woke Turocy to tell him she was leaving with their child and he responded with threats of violence if she left and took the child. At that point the argument awakened and eventually grabbed her by the throat and neck and began strangling her before she was finally able to get free and run from the apartment with their son.

She told police Turocy ran into the bathroom as she left, threatening to kill himself and she could hear the slide being pulled on a semi-automatic handgun.

The woman reported the incident to Indiana State Police Trooper Nate Adams later on July 13 and he advised her to get checked out at King's Daughters' Hospital. Madison Police Department was eventually notified and Barnes began investigating.

Police, attempting to locate Turocy, went to the homes of two friends but were unsuccessful. One of the friends told police Turocy had been there about three hours earlier but had been asked to leave because he was acting erratically.

Madison Police had actually made contact with Turocy after the incident but prior to the interview with the woman, when another officer, Adam Guzman, responded to a call at the Madison Walmart concerning a male with a firearm. Guzman responded but did not take Turocy into custody. However, he seized the gun since the call was related to a potential suicidal male.

Turocy then turned himself in to police Sunday afternoon July 14. He is facing charges of criminal confinement, a Level 5 felony; criminal recklessness; domestic battery in the presence of a child under age 6; strangulation; and criminal confinement, all Level 6 felonies; and criminal trespass, a Class A misdemeanor.

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — An Indianapolis man has been sentenced to 30 years in federal prison for his role in the robbery and fatal shooting of a Jennings County gun shop owner. A judge ordered the sentence Thursday after 24-year-old Darion Harris pleaded guilty. He took part in the September 2014 robbery of the Muscatatuck Outdoors Gun Shop near North Vernon. Authorities say that during the robbery Darryl Worthen fatally shot 61-year-old Scott Maxie, after which Worthen, Harris and Dejuan Worthen stole 45 guns from the store. They returned to Indianapolis, where they sold several of the weapons. Darryl Worthen was sentenced in 2015 to 60 years in prison. Dejuan Worthen has agreed to plead guilty and is awaiting sentencing.

Hill won't appeal order blocking procedure ban

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana's attorney general has reversed himself and decided against appealing a federal judge's decision to block a state law that would ban a second-trimester abortion procedure. A judge granted a preliminary injunction last month sought by doctors who perform dilation and evacuation abortions. Republican Attorney General Curtis Hill said after that ruling that he would try to have the injunction lifted, but he announced Wednesday his office would concentrate on arguing that the law is constitutional. That decision means the law can't be enforced while court proceedings continue. The law passed this spring by Indiana's Republican-dominated Legislature calls the abortion procedure "dismemberment abortion." The U.S. Supreme Court declined last month to revive a similar Alabama law.

Prosecutor resigns after abuse sentencing

GREENFIELD — A prosecutor has resigned from the elected post after avoiding jail time in a domestic abuse case. Johnson County Prosecutor Brad Cooper apologized in a Hancock County courtroom Wednesday before a special judge sentenced him to 540 days of probation. Cooper pleaded guilty in April to felony charges of criminal confinement, identity deception and official misconduct and misdemeanor domestic battery. He was sentenced after his plea was officially entered Wednesday. Cooper then resigned from the post he'd held since 2009. Indiana law requires the removal of elected officials who plead guilty to a felony. Court records say a woman identified as Cooper's fiance ran to a neighbor's Trafalgar home in March with a swollen right eye.

Feds award Floyd $3M for road project

NEW ALBANY — Floyd County has landed a $3 million federal grant for construction of a road that will serve a planned high-tech industrial park. The funding from the U.S. Department of Commerce must be matched with $3 million in local investment for the road's construction. Floyd County's commissioners say the grant will help the county expand its industrial base by accommodating high-tech businesses at the Floyd County Tech Park. The road will also mitigate the impact of flooding in the Ohio River county. U.S. Sen. Todd Young says the grant will provide "critical support" for the industrial park that will cater to high-tech businesses, including spaceflight systems manufacturers. Officials say the federal grant for the road's construction is expected to spur $10 million in private investment and create 50 jobs.

Prosecutors drop charges in killing of 2

CROWN POINT — Prosecutors have dropped murder charges against a man accused of fatally shooting two people inside a home. A Lake County judge dismissed the charges against 26-year-old Teal L. Cross on Wednesday after prosecutors filed a motion seeking the dismissal. That motion says "the state intends to refile this matter at a later date." The (Northwest Indiana) Times reports that Cross was accused of fatally shooting 52-year-old Manuel F. Alfaro and 39-year-old Heather Rayner in April 2018 inside Alfaro's home in the Lake County town of New Chicago. The Hammond man remains jailed in a drug case stemming from his February arrest in the double-murder case. Defense attorney Jamise Perkins says prosecutors had sought to delay Cross' trial because they had not yet received results from DNA testing.

County pays $132,000 in attack ransom

LAPORTE — Officials in a LaPorte County paid about $132,000 in ransom to hackers who took over some of the county's computers. LaPorte County commissioners president Vidya Kora says the payment was made with the virtual currency Bitcoin after FBI experts weren't able to unlock the county's data. Once paid off, the hackers gave the county a decryption key for staffers to access the locked computers. The virus attack hit the county's computers and server network July 6. Officials say a system shutdown prevented the virus from spreading to most of the county's computers. Kora says the personal information of county employees doesn't appear to have been accessed by the hackers. Insurance will cover $100,000 of the ransom paid.

Girl dies, 2nd critical after fall into pond

JAMESTOWN — Police say a 5-year-old girl died and a 3-year-old girl is in critical condition after they fell into a pond. The Boone County Sheriff's office says Arianna Aliff of New Ross died Wednesday after being pulled from the pond near Jamestown. A 3-year-old girl who's under foster care by Aliff's parents was hospitalized in critical condition. The sheriff's office had no updates Thursday on her condition. Major Brian Stevenson says the girls fell into a pond that's part of a residential property while they and other family members were playing outside Wednesday. Relatives found the girls in the pond after searching for the youngsters. Police said the Aliff family has four biological children, two adopted children and two foster children.

Lawmakers convene for session on pensions

FRANKFORT — For the second time in less than a year, lawmakers have returned to the statehouse for a special session dealing with the state's pension problems. Lawmakers convened Friday for a session expected to stretch into the middle of next week. Republican Gov. Matt Bevin called the session to take up his pension-relief proposal for regional universities and quasi-governmental agencies burdened by surging retirement costs. Bevin spent weeks rounding up votes and finding a time when enough supporters could gather to take up the measure. It replaces a bill that Bevin vetoed in April after lawmakers ended their regular session. Bevin's team says he has secured enough votes to pass his proposal. Last December, Bevin called a special session to pass a more comprehensive pension law.

More than 100 pigs die in wreck on highway

LOUISVILLE — More than 100 pigs have died in a wreck along Intrestate 65. The Courier Journal reports a semitrailer carrying nearly 180 pigs overturned Wednesday near Louisville, spilling the creatures and shutting down the roadway. Louisville police spokesman Matthew Sanders says 110 of the pigs were killed or euthanized due to sustained injuries. The crash's cause is under investigation. The driver didn't suffer injuries considered to be life threatening. JBS USA spokesman Cameron Bruett says the pigs weren't owned by the company. Sanders says the truck is believed to have been headed to a processing plant. In 2017, a semitrailer carrying about 150 pigs overturned on Interstate 64 when all the pigs shifted to one side of the vehicle. Several pigs were killed or euthanized.

U of L has successful research funding haul

LOUISVILLE — The University of Louisville says it has had its most successful year securing funding for research since 2012, with more than $150 million flowing in for projects. The university says the funding was for the fiscal year 2018-19. It's an increase of $14 million from the previous fiscal year, and ranged from projects on gum disease to e-cigarettes, robots and sexual assault investigations. Robert S. Keynton, the university's interim executive vice president for research and innovation, says the research done with the funding "can change, improve and even save lives." Among the projects was $18 million over five years from the National Institutes of Health for a biomedical research center. School faculty received a preliminary total of 950 grants from federal and state government as well as private sources.

Agencies get federal funds for homelessness

LOUISVILLE — Six homeless agencies have received a combined $3.4 million in federal funding to care for homeless youth. A Louisville's Coalition for the Homeless statement says funding comes from a federal Housing and Urban Development program aimed at ending youth homelessness. The program includes help for unaccompanied and pregnant or parenting youth, where no household member is older than 24. The groups receiving the funding are Centerstone of Kentucky; Family Scholar House; Home of the Innocents, in partnership with St. Vincent de Paul; KentuckianaWorks; YouthBuild; and YMCA Safe Place. The programs at the six agencies will vary from added staffing to a 24-unit transitional housing facility and employment training.

Attorneys want statements tossed

BENTON — Attorneys for a teenager charged with fatally shooting two classmates and wounding 14 others at school filed a motion to suppress his statements to investigators. The Louisville Courier Journal reports Gabriel R. Parker's attorneys say his statements weren't voluntary, violated his self-incrimination privileges and his right to counsel. The motion says investigators didn't obtain a proper waiver of Parker's Miranda rights, didn't correctly contact Parker's mother and didn't correctly comply with the mother's request for an attorney. Marshall Commonwealth's Attorney Dennis Foust says he has until Aug. 1 to respond to the motion. Police say Parker fatally shot Preston Cope and Bailey Holt in January 2018. Parker told police he'd thought about the shooting for a week, didn't target anyone and did it to "break the monotony."

JULY: MEN AND CANCER

Healthy Lifestyles Monthly Health Message

Did you know that over 40% of men will develop cancer during their lifetime?

Make prevention and early screening a priority!

Lower your Risks...

- Avoid or quit tobacco use.
- Protect your skin from the sun.
- Eat a diet rich in vegetables, fruits, and whole grains.
- Limit processed meat.
- Achieve a healthy body weight.
- Get plenty of exercise.
- Men should limit alcohol consumption to no more than two drinks a day.
- Get immunized on schedule, including HPV vaccination for younger men.

Be Aware of Symptoms ...

- Blood in urine or stool.
- Changes in urinary or bowel habits.
- Persistent fatigue or pain.
- A lasting cough.

Make an appointment for a yearly check up to talk to your doctor about your cancer risk.

Get Screened...

- TESTICULAR: Perform a monthly exam to find lumps in their earliest stages.
- SKIN: Check yourself monthly for changes in moles/freckles. Have a head-to-toe skin screen yearly with a doctor.
- PROSTATE: Both a PSA blood test AND a Digital Rectal Exam are important components of a prostate screen for men age 50+ (or after 40 for African American men or if you have a family history of prostate cancer).
- LUNG: Smokers or long-term past smokers should discuss lung screening options with your doctor.
- COLON: Many take-home stool sample kits are available. Talk to your doctor about options and when you should have a colonoscopy.

Fast-growing web of doorbell cams raises privacy fears

By AMY FORLITI and MATT O'BRIEN
Associated Press

The woodsy community of Wolcott, Connecticut, doesn't see a lot of crime. But when the police chief heard about an opportunity to distribute doorbell cameras to some homes, he didn't hesitate.

The police who keep watch over the town of 16,000 raffled off free cameras in a partnership with the camera manufacturer. So far, the devices have encountered more bears than criminals, but Chief Ed Stephens is still a fan. "Anything that helps keep the town safe, I'm going to do it," he said.

But as more police agencies join with the company known as Ring, the partnerships are raising privacy concerns. Critics complain that the systems turn neighborhoods into places of constant surveillance and create suspicion that falls heavier on minorities. Police say the cameras can serve as a digital neighborhood watch.

Critics also say Ring, a subsidiary of Amazon, appears to be marketing its cameras by stirring up fear of crime at a time when it's decreasing. Amazon's promotional videos show people lurking around homes, and the company recently posted a job opening for a managing news editor to "deliver breaking crime news alerts to our neighbors."

"Amazon is profiting off of fear," said Chris Gilliard, an English professor at Michigan's Macomb Community College and a prominent critic of Ring and other technology that he says can reinforce race barriers. Part of the strategy seems to be selling the cameras "where the fear of crime is more real than the actual existence of crime."

The cameras offer a wide view from wherever they are positioned. Homeowners get phone alerts with streaming video if the doorbell rings or the device's heat sensors detect a person or a passing car. Ring's basic doorbell sells for $99, with recurring charges starting at $3 a month for users who want footage stored. Ring says it stores the recordings for two months.

Many law enforcement agencies nationwide said the idea to partner with Ring came after the company promoted its product at law enforcement conferences.

Some departments have chosen to simply use Ring's Neighbors app, which encourages residents to share videos of suspicious activity. Other agencies agreed to provide subsidies, matched by Ring, to offer hundreds of discounted cameras in hopes of tapping into footage of residential streets, yards and sidewalks. And some police chiefs raffle off the devices.

Ring would not disclose the number of communities with such partnerships. Sharing video is always voluntary and privacy is protected, according to the company and police.

"There is nothing required of homeowners who participate in the subsidies, and their identity and data remain private," spokeswoman Brigid Gorham said. She said customers can control who views their footage, and no personally identifiable information is shared with police without a user's consent.

Realistically, though, if police want video for an investigation, they can seek a search warrant.

Tech industry analyst Carolina Milanesi said engaging with police and offering incentives is a "very smart move by Ring" and a missed opportunity for competitors, including Google's Nest and smaller companies such as Arlo Technologies and SimpliSafe.

But a staff attorney at the American Civil Liberties Union of Southern California called the system "an unmitigated disaster" for the privacy of many neighborhoods.

Through the subsidy programs, Amazon "gets to offer, at taxpayer dime, discounted products that allow it to really expand its tentacles into wide areas of private life way more than it already has," Mohammad Tajsar said.

The Los Angeles suburb of Arcadia has spent $50,000 to offer discounts on 1,000 cameras. Several other communities in the region also participate in subsidy programs, and officials in Los Angeles County just voted last month to get on board.

Officers can view a "heat map" that shows the general area where cameras are, but they do not see a camera's actual location. If police want a video, they must contact Ring to see if the resident is willing to share, said Jennifer Brutus, senior management analyst for the Arcadia Police Department.

Arcadia launched its program at the end of 2017, and in the following year, the city saw a 25% decrease in residential burglaries, Brutus said. It's hard to quantify how much of that is directly related to Ring, but she said the devices act as a deterrent.

In one case, a doorbell camera caught footage of four burglary suspects trying to enter a residence. Three were arrested at the time, but a fourth got away. After the homeowner gave Arcadia detectives some Ring video clips, police identified and arrested the last suspect.

Hammond, Indiana, also put up money to offer Ring cameras at a discount. Lt. Steve Kellogg said the partnership was a natural move for a city that already uses cameras to read license plates.

"You cannot enter or leave our city without ... being captured on film," he said, adding that doorbell cameras are the next logical step. "We thought, 'Well, the only angle we don't really have is cameras right by the homes.'"

He said sharing video is voluntary.

Green Bay, Wisconsin, gets one free camera for every 20 people who sign up for the Ring app through a city link. Initially, police required recipients of those free cameras to agree to provide any video police requested. It dropped the requirement after The Associated Press began reporting this story.

In the Minneapolis suburb of Coon Rapids, a thief stole a 7-foot, 150-pound bald eagle carving from Larry Eklund's yard earlier this year. Police had a key piece of evidence: an image of the suspect looking directly into Eklund's doorbell camera.

A few days went by with no leads. Then officers posted the video on social media. Hours later, the carving was returned.

"If we wouldn't have had the Ring, we would have never been able to recognize the guy," Eklund said. "I'm sure it would've been just really hard to get it back."

But Coon Rapids opted not to partner with Ring and instead started its own in-house volunteer camera registry. Trish Heitman, a community outreach specialist for the police department, said the city did not want to promote a particular camera brand.

Another big issue was confidentiality. Coon Rapids keeps its list of registered camera owners private. If a crime occurs near a camera, police can contact homeowners in the registry to see if they want to share video.

If any partnership required data sharing, "we would never do it," Heitman said.

Back in Wolcott, Ernie Field won a free Ring camera and said he had to register for the app to qualify for the raffle. Now he gets alerts on his phone when a car drives by and a short video when his daughter gets home from school.

"I don't know if there's more crime now, or we just know about it more because of social media," he said.

Field, who said he had been looking at other cameras, wondered whether Wolcott's partnership gave Amazon an unfair advantage.

"They have a monopoly over a lot of things," he said. "And they're kind of taking over everything."

Duke Energy sued for 2014 coal ash spill, environmental damage

By EMERY P. DALESIO
AP Business Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. — The federal, North Carolina and Virginia governments asked a court Thursday to declare the country's largest electricity company liable for environmental damage from a leak five years ago that left miles of a river shared by the two states coated in hazardous coal ash.

Government lawyers sought to have Charlotte-based Duke Energy declared responsible for harming fish, birds, amphibians and the Dan River bottom. Hazardous substances like arsenic and selenium poured into the river at levels high enough to harm aquatic life, according to a complaint filed in the North Carolina federal court district near the site of the 2014 disaster.

The leak of waste Duke Energy stored after burning coal for power coated about 70 miles of the river from a power plant near Eden, renewing national attention on the risks posed by similar storage pits across the country.

Duke Energy pleaded guilty to federal environmental crimes in 2015 and agreed to pay $102 million. The company said three years of testing through 2017 found no long-term effects to the river's environment.

The government's complaint "establishes beyond any doubt that the Dan River spill did serious harm," said Frank Holleman, an attorney at the Southern Environmental Law Center. "The two states and the United States government are pursuing money and compensation for that harm."

A tentative settlement also filed with the court for public review indicates the sides have agreed on the scope of the restoration needed.

Duke Energy already has paid to remove a defunct 1915 hydroelectric dam on the Pigg River in Virginia and added a boat dock and other improvements to a Danville, Virginia, park that was closed for months while coal ash was dredged from the river, the consent decree signed by the company and government officials said. The power company also bought 340 acres in North Carolina and 214 acres in Virginia along the Mayo River, which was then transferred to state parks in both states.

The restoration and plans for what remains left to do will be described in public meetings scheduled in the coming weeks, court documents said.

"These environmental projects conserve important land, improve aquatic habitat and allow more community access to nature and the outdoors," said Paul Draovitch, a Duke Energy vice president for environment, health and safety. "We look forward to hearing the public's feedback on this important work."

Since the Dan River spill, Duke Energy has been prodded by court orders and a new state law to excavate coal-ash pits at eight of its 14 North Carolina power plants, with the ash to be stored away from waterways.

But the company is fighting an order by state environmental regulators to also excavate its remaining six sites. Duke Energy had proposed covering some storage pits with a waterproof cap, saying that would prevent rain from passing through and carrying chemicals through the unlined bottoms and would provide a quicker and cheaper option.

Duke Energy contends the expanded excavation requirement could double its costs to about $10 billion and take up to 30 years to complete. State utilities regulators last year allowed the company to begin charging ratepayers the first $778 million chunk of cleanup costs.

Virginia and South Carolina had already ordered its major electric utilities to remove all their coal ash out of unlined storage.

Charlotte-based Duke Energy has 7.6 million electricity customers in the Carolinas, Florida, Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio.

Kentucky reports drop in drug overdose deaths in 2018

By BRUCE SCHREINER
Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky. — After years of rising death tolls from a surge in drug addiction, Kentucky officials on Thursday reported the first statewide drop in drug overdose deaths since 2013.

A new report indicated that 1,333 people died from drug overdoses in 2018, down nearly 15% from a record 1,566 deaths the prior year in the bluegrass state.

The statewide decline was by far the largest in at least a decade, state officials said. In 2013, the overdose death rate fell by close to 3%, they said.

Last year's drop follows years of steady increases in the death toll, driven mostly by overdoses from opioid painkillers and the prevalence of such powerful drugs as heroin and fentanyl. Drug overdoses far outpace traffic crashes as a cause of death in Kentucky.

Kentucky's political leaders, from Frankfort to Washington, D.C., hailed the downturn in drug-related fatalities in the report from the Kentucky Office of Drug Control Policy. But they cautioned it's just one round in a long fight, as did officials at the forefront of the anti-drug campaign.

"The numbers are trending down, but our state still faces incredible challenges," said state Justice and Public Safety Secretary John Tilley. "This crisis claimed more than 1,300 lives last year and inflicted untold heartbreak on our families and communities."

Van Ingram, executive director of the Office of Drug Control Policy, pointed to education and treatment programs along with other "harm-reduction" efforts as factors in the lower death toll.

"We just hope that this trend will continue, and we're going to do everything we can to make that happen," Ingram said in a phone interview.

The state got another boost earlier this year when the federal government approved a Medicaid waiver that will allow drug treatment centers to open up more beds, he said.

Wider distribution of the overdose-reversing drug naloxone was another key factor in lowering Kentucky's overdose deaths, Ingram said.

State leaders pointed to ongoing efforts to improve access to drug treatment. Gov. Matt Bevin stressed the importance of partnerships with law enforcement and health care providers "as we allocate unprecedented resources to combat this scourge and save lives."

U.S. Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, who helped steer nearly $200 million in federal funds to assist in Kentucky's efforts against the drug epidemic, said he has "made the fight to save lives from the horrors of addiction and abuse a top national priority."

The state's most lethal drug in 2018 was fentanyl and fentanyl analogues, contributing to 786 overdose deaths, the report said.

Helen Freeman

Helen J. Freeman, 86, of Madison, Indiana, died Thursday, July 18, 2019, at Hickory Creek in Madison.

She was born Feb. 16, 1933, in Lawrenceport, Indiana, the daughter to Vollie and Anna Catherine (Nicholson) Garrison. She attended school in Mitchell, Indiana, before moving to Madison. She married William Freeman on April 12, 1952, in Bedford, Indiana. She enjoyed watching birds — she was a hummingbird fanatic — and loved crafts, knitting, sewing and crocheting and collecting Beanie Babies.

She is survived by a daughter, Jill Freeman, of Jeffersonville, Indiana; a son, David Freeman, of Madison; and two granddaughters and five great-grandchildren.

She was preceded in death by her parents and her husband.

Funeral services will be at 1 p.m. Monday, July 22, 2019, at Lytle Welty Funeral Homes & Cremation Service, Vail Chapel, Madison, with interment to follow in Indiana Veterans Memorial Cemetery in Madison.

Visitation will be at the funeral chapel from 11 a.m. until time of service Monday, July 22.

The family requests memorial contributions be made to the Jefferson County Animal Shelter. Contributions may be made at any of the Lytle Funeral Homes & Cremation Service locations.

Online condolences may be made at lytlewelty.com

Ann Lawson

Ann "Oma" Lawson, 75, of West Lafayette, Indiana, died Wednesday, July 17, 2019, at IU Arnett Hospital in Lafayette.

She was born Dec. 2, 1943 in Hyden, Kentucky, to Boyd and Ellen Begley Caldwell, but she was raised by her aunt Rose Begley and uncle Taylor G. Baker in Manchester, Kentucky. She attended Oneida Baptist Institute before graduating from Clay County High School in 1960. She attended Cumberland College in Williamsburg, Kentucky, where she met her husband, Homer Lawson. They began teaching in Bucyrus, Ohio, with 60 college credits but returned every summer to Cumberland College to complete their bachelor's degrees in 1969. She was a lifelong teacher in the classroom and to anyone who knew her. She and her husband moved to Scott County, Indiana, to teach and began working on their master's degrees at Indiana University Southeast, which they completed in 1972. Her husband finished his doctorate at Indiana University Bloomington in 1973 and the family moved to Vincennes, Indiana, where they lived until 1988. Over her career, she also taught in Sulphur Springs, Ohio, Vincennes Community Schools, Saudi Arabia, Madison and North Knox School Corporation in Indiana. After she and her husband retired, they moved to Lake County, Illinois to be near their daughter and twin granddaughters, attending every sporting event and working selling tickets and serving in the concession stand for the vast majority of the twins' games. Her hobbies were playing cards, reading, playing golf, traveling to Civil War battlefields with her daughter and watching IU basketball.

She is survived by her daughter, Teresa Lawson Hufnagel, of West Lafayette; twin granddaughters, Emily Rosann Lawson Hufnagel and Rachel Clare Lawson Hufnagel, of West Lafayette; a sister, Sarah Baker of North Port, Florida; and two brothers, Robert Caldwell of Hope, Indiana, and Richard Caldwell of New Albany, Indiana.

She was preceded in death by her parents; the aunt and uncle who raised her; her husband; and a brother, Gary Caldwell of Scottsburg, Indiana.

Funeral services will be at 3 p.m. Saturday, July 20, 2019, at Soller-Baker Funeral Home in Lafayette, Indiana.

Visitation will be Saturday, July 20, from 1 p.m. until time of service.

There will also be visitation at the Britton Funeral Home in Manchester, Kentucky, from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, July 22 and from 1p.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday, July 23, 2019, at Manchester Baptist Church with a funeral service at 2 p.m. followed by burial at Morgan-Begley Cemetery in Hyden, Kentucky.

Robert Manning

In Memory Of

Ann "Oma" Lawson

December 2, 1943 ~ July 17, 2019

Ann "Oma" Lawson, 75 years old, of West Lafayette, Indiana passed away on Wednesday, July 17, 2019 at IU Arnett Hospital in Lafayette, IN. She was born on December 2, 1943 in Hyden, Kentucky to Boyd and Ellen (Begley) Caldwell. She was blessed to have been welcomed into the home of her beloved Aunt Rose (Begley) & Uncle Taylor G. Baker in Manchester, KY where she grew up and was much loved. Ann attended Oneida Baptist Institute and then graduated from Clay County High School in 1960 at the age of 16. She attended Cumberland College in Williamsburg, KY. There she met her future husband, Homer Lawson, and they eloped after three months on December 19, 1962 in Hindman, KY. They were blessed by the birth of their only child, Teresa Rosann in 1964. They began teaching in Bucyrus, OH with 60 college credits and they returned every summer to Cumberland College to complete their B.S. degrees in 1969. Ann was a lifelong teacher both in the classroom and to anyone who knew her. They moved to Scott County, IN to teach and immediately began their M.S. degrees at Indiana University Southeast, completing them in 1972. After Homer finished his doctorate at Indiana University Bloomington in 1973, the family moved to Vincennes, IN where they made their home until 1988. Over her career, Ann taught in Sulphur Springs, OH, Vincennes Community Schools, Saudi Arabia, Madison, IN & North Knox School Corporation in IN. Once they became grandparents they retired and moved to Lake County, IL to be near Teresa and their twin granddaughters, Emily Rosann Lawson Hufnagel and Rachel Clare Lawson Hufnagel. While Ann was an incredible teacher and a devoted mother, she was born to be the consummate loving grandmother. She was known as Oma to every child and adult who she met from the moment she became a grandparent. She attended every single sporting event and worked selling tickets and serving in the concession stand for the vast majority of the twins' games. As one of the girls' former principals said, she was the embodiment and definition of what a grandmother should be. Ann's hobbies were playing cards, reading, playing golf (even winning a trophy!), traveling to Civil War battlefields with her daughter, & watching IU basketball!

Ann is survived by her daughter Teresa Lawson Hufnagel (John) of West Lafayette, IN who was Ann's best friend, confidante, caregiver, and constant companion. She is also survived by her son-in-law, John Hufnagel who helped with her care in the last 10 years of her life. John was her golfing & euchre partner as well. Oma is survived by her beloved twin granddaughters who were her roommates, her partners-in-crime, and whom she loved more than life itself. Ann was a lifelong Christian and her faith was a very important part of who she was. Ann was the oldest of five siblings, three of whom survive her: Sarah (Bob) Baker of North Port, FL, Robert Caldwell of Hope, IN, and Richard (Pam) Caldwell of New Albany, IN. Ann was predeceased by her husband of 45 years, Dr. Homer Lawson, her in-laws, Finley & Effie (Hubbard) Lawson of Manchester, KY, her brother Gary Caldwell of Scottsburg, IN and her cherished Aunt Rose & Uncle Taylor Baker of Manchester, KY.

Visitation will be from 1-3 pm on Saturday, July 20 at Soller-Baker Funeral Home, 400 Twyckenham Blvd, Lafayette, IN 47909, with services at 3 pm performed by Chaplain Randall Adams who was her chaplain, friend, and surrogate son.

After that the family will be further celebrating Ann's life in her hometown of Manchester, KY at Britton Funeral Home with visitation from 4-8 pm on Monday, July 22. On Tuesday, July 23, 2019 there will be additional visitation from 1-2 pm with the funeral officiated by Rev. Ken Bolin of Manchester Baptist Church beginning at 2 pm followed by burial at Morgan-Begley Cemetery in Hyden, KY.

US heat wave warming up for long, scorching weekend

By COREY WILLIAMS and SETH BORENSTEIN
Associated Press

DETROIT — The heat wave that has been roasting much of the U.S. in recent days is just getting warmed up, with temperatures expected to soar to dangerous levels through the weekend.

Communities are preparing by offering buildings as cooling centers and asking residents to check in on relatives and neighbors. Officials also are concerned about smog, which is exacerbated by the heat and makes it more difficult for certain people to breathe, including the very young, the elderly and people with asthma or lung diseases.

The heat wave will likely be "short and searing," said Greg Carbin, forecast branch chief for the weather service's Weather Prediction Center.

More than 100 local heat records are expected to fall Saturday, according to the National Weather Service. Most won't be record-daily highs but record-high nighttime lows, and that lack of cooling can be dangerous, meteorologists say. Temperatures in parts of the East won't drop below the mid- to upper-70s or even 80 degrees at night, he said.

A high pressure system stretching from coast-to-coast is keeping the heat turned on. The heat and humidity are made to feel worse by the large amount of moisture in the air coming from the Gulf of Mexico, much of it left over from Hurricane Barry.

The heat index, which is what the temperature feels like, should hit 110 in Washington, D.C., on Saturday and 109 in Chicago and Detroit on Friday, said Jeff Masters, meteorology director of Weather Underground. Wednesday marked Washington's seventh straight day with temperatures of at least 90 degrees, and that streak was expected to last for another five days.

An experimental weather service forecast projects that nearly 100 local records will be broken Thursday and Friday in Texas, Oklahoma, parts of the Midwest and a large swath of the East Coast. On Saturday, 101 records could fall in an area stretching from Texas to Iowa and east to Maine and Florida, according to projections.

Deloris Knight said she will keep the heat out of her eastside Detroit home by keeping her doors and curtains closed while running the small window air conditioner in her living room.

"We have a couple of big fans. We have ceiling fans," Knight, 63, said Wednesday while enjoying temperatures in the mid-80s from her front porch. "I keep lemonade and gallons of frozen water in the refrigerator. At night, we're in the house."

Even that may not provide enough relief for some, especially for young children, the elderly or people with certain chronic illnesses.

The Environmental Protection Agency's live air quality tracker reported that the air was "unhealthy" Wednesday for sensitive groups in a stretch of the East Coast from Baltimore to Bridgeport, Connecticut, including Philadelphia and New York City.

Such heat can be deadly. Over three days in July 1995, more than 700 people died during a heat wave in Chicago as temperatures rose above 97 degrees. Many of the dead were poor, elderly and lived alone.

"Daytime hours when the sun is out is clearly our highest risk periods," said Dr. Michael Kaufmann, EMS medical director with the Indiana Department of Homeland Security. "We're not expecting the drops in temperature at night — or the humidity — that we often realize when the sun goes down."

Roger Axe, who heads the emergency management agency in Indiana's Greene County, said he has asked churches and other organizations to open their doors as "possible life-saving cooling centers."

Officials in the Detroit suburb of Westland will keep the police station lobby and one of its fire stations open around the clock. The Chicago suburb of Orland Park also opened its police station as its primary 24-hour cooling center.

Kelly Boeckman, 31, and Taylor Knoll, 28, met Wednesday morning — when the heat was still bearable — to chat at a patio table in downtown Jefferson City, Missouri. Both have young children and said they are careful to keep them hydrated and protected from the heat.

"We definitely aren't doing outside activities for the afternoon and evening, even though they want to sometimes," said Boeckman, who has 6-year-old twins and a 3 year old. They're "playing early, (getting) lots of water and hydration, (and) staying in the shade when we are outside."

Steve Owen, a 54-year-old bus driver from Roeland Park, Kansas, dumped water on his head to stay cool Wednesday while waiting to pick up a day care group from the local pool.

"I'm usually revived and feeling much better," he said after drenching himself. "That usually gets me through."

The heat also can take a toll on pets and other animals. Officials at the Brookfield Zoo near Chicago have spent the past few days preparing.

Blocks of ice weighing about 300 pounds (136 kilograms) were being trucked in for the polar and grizzly bears, and the zoo planned to give ice cubes to the reindeer. Additional animals were being given access to indoor quarters starting Thursday.

"The welfare of the animals is our top priority," said zoo spokeswoman Sondra Katzen.

The same is true at the Lincoln Park Zoo in Chicago, where some animals have cooling stations in their enclosures and space off-exhibit where they can go to cool down, said general curator Dave Bernier.

"I don't expect it to be much change in attendance," he said. "Once they decide they want to go to the zoo on the weekend, that's usually where they go."

Blazing Sunshine: Wilting Heat

The searing sun sets near the Dupont fire house Thursday evening, bringing to a close another day when local temperature and humidity combined for a triple-digit heat index. The brutal combination makes highs feel like temperatures over 100 degrees. The weather pattern is expected to continue, with an excessive heat warning in effect until 8 p.m. Sunday. A check locally Friday morning found no cooling shelters as escapes for homeless people or people without air-conditioning or fans. Health authorities advise everyone to limit time outdoors, avoid strenuous activity outside, drink plenty of water and check on elderly or ailing friends. Lifeguards at Madison's Crystal Beach swimming pool are getting extra breaks and extra water, and umbrellas provide some shade for swimmers. (Courier staff photo by Connor Jacobs)

50 years after Apollo 11

Purdue University long known as 'cradle of astronauts'

By ELIZABETH DEPOMPEI
(Jeffersonville & New Albany) News and Tribune

INDIANA, U.S., EARTH — Today, when the country celebrates the 50th anniversary of the Apollo 11 moon landing, they'll be applauding one of Indiana's many contributions to space exploration.

Fourteen years before he commanded the historic Apollo 11 mission that took mankind to the moon, Neil Armstrong graduated from Purdue University in West Lafayette with a degree in aeronautical engineering. By 1969 he would become the first person to step foot on the lunar surface.

Armstrong's legacy is well-known and championed among Hoosiers, but he's not the only space explorer with Indiana ties. In fact, Purdue has long been known as the "cradle of astronauts," with graduates such as Gus Grissom (a Mitchell native who died in the Apollo 1 spacecraft fire), Gene Cernan (the last person to walk the moon), and more recently, Beth Moses (the first female commercial astronaut now working for Virgin Galactic).

Dr. Steven Collicott, professor at Purdue's School of Aeronautics and Astronautics in the College of Engineering, revels in Purdue's rich history of aerospace. He's worked with or met a number of the space greats, including Armstrong (he says he could tell you exactly where he was standing when he shook Armstrong's hand).

"Being an aerospace professor here is an amazing job," said Collicott, who has taught at Purdue for nearly 30 years. "My colleagues, our staff and students, the alumni I meet around the country and around the world, people just really share a passion for aerospace and share a desire to achieve new things."

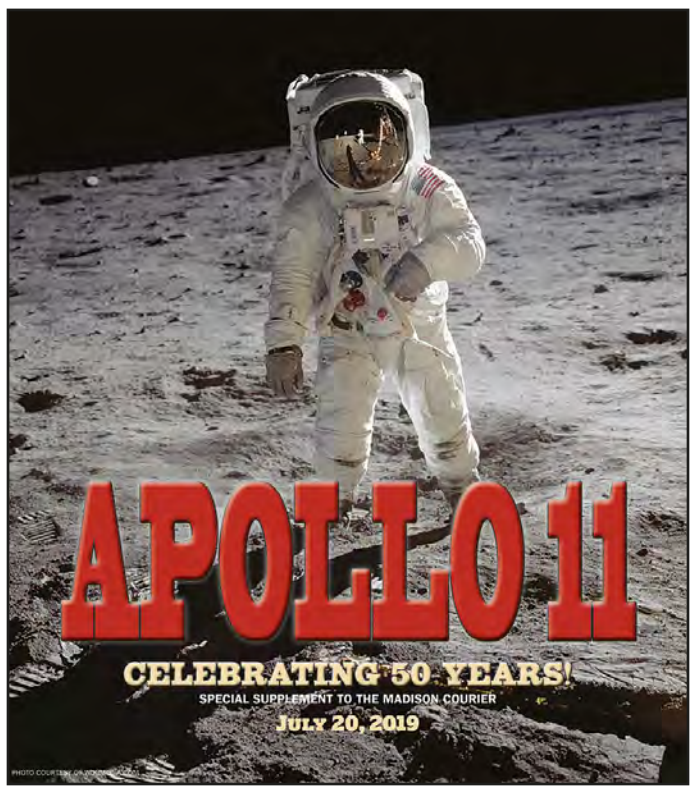
Techshot co-founder John Vellinger, a native of Lafayette, Indiana, is pictured at the company's payload operational control room in Greenville. The aerospace innovation company has developed and sent numerous research devices to the International Space Station.

"We were sitting there, all six of us in the living room," he said. "but in my memory, it's just the television and I — there's nobody else. I was so focused, so excited by what was going on."

Growing up in the age of the moon landing, Collicott can't quite understand how anyone grew up to be anything but an astronaut. He's not exactly an astronaut himself, but he teaches the next generation of space enthusiasts, leads suborbital experiments and helps advise the engineering and aerospace community. He's also had experiments fly on the International Space Station.

It's hard to know how many other native or adopted Hoosiers are behind the scenes chipping away at space research and exploration. As Collicott says, there's not some kind of tall, Indiana aerospace factory signaling all the work being done in the state. It's work that isn't typically thrust into the national spotlight.

Greenville-based Techshot, however, has gotten a taste of such recognition. Last year at a National Space Council meeting at the White House, the aerospace, military and defense innovation company got a very public shoutout from the vice president of the United States, a Hoosier himself.



Inside today's Madison Courier ...

The company routinely designs and launches research equipment to the International Space Station. Techshot's 3D BioFabrication Facility, or BFF, is set to launch to the ISS this month. The device is capable of manufacturing human tissue in microgravity and could one day print human hearts. The company's Multi-use Variable-gravity Platform, or MVP, is also headed to the space station to help study how organisms survive and adapt in space.

The seed for what would become Techshot was planted when co-founder and Lafayette native John Vellinger entered a middle school science fair competition. Then, while a freshman at Purdue University, NASA came knocking. That middle school project, a space-based incubator for chicken embryos, was dubbed "Chix in Space" and launched on the shuttle Discovery in 1989.

Techshot puts Southern Indiana on the galactic map.

Vellinger had just turned 4 when Apollo 11 landed on the moon, but remembers the excitement around the big event. It inevitably inspired his extra-terrestrial curiosities.

"I think the excitement, the buzz, the pride as a nation in an industry — I think was exciting to be a part of," he said. "It's fun to work in space. It's exciting."

Vellinger and Collicott expect the moon landing anniversary will reignite public interest in space exploration. For Collicott and Purdue University, that interest could be evident five years from now in the form of an enrollment spike. That's just speculation, but the university suspects past events, like the Mars Rover or the first Space X launch, have been responsible for previous spikes.

"I think the 50th anniversary will be a nice shot in the arm," Vellinger said. "I think it will be a great reminder of our national pride."

NASA hopes to send astronauts back to the moon in 2024, with sights set on a manned mission to Mars. When that will happen is anyone's guess, but with institutions like Purdue and Techshot, Indiana is bound to leave behind another epic footprint.

Business partner sues over sale of floating riverfront restaurant, dock

Courier staff report

The former co-owner of a restaurant and dock on the river in Madison has sued her former partner to recover assets she claims were not divided properly when the partnership was dissolved with the sale of the business in 2018.

In the lawsuit, Charlene Ballard claims she entered into a partnership with Gary Gillispie for operation of the Madison Lighthouse, located next to Vaughn Drive near Broadway Street on the Ohio River, and that when Gillispie sold the business in February 2018 without her "assent and against her will," cash and assets were not divided equally.

The suit says that Ballard had been a business partner of Gillispie since September 2007 and partners in the Madison Lighthouse since January 2014. Although no written agreement exists, Ballard said she "paid in as capital the sum of $150,000 in labor and skill" when the alleged partnership was launched in 2014 while Gillispie "paid in as such capital the sum of $150,000" under a "partnership agreement that was implied by division of the profits" during operation of the business.

According to Ballard's attorney, Merritt K. Alcorn, under Indiana law a partnership is implied if there is a division of profits and that also carries over a division of the assets.

Gillispie opted to liquidate the business in 2018 and Ballard contends she is entitled to her share of the cash and business assets, some of which are located off-site.

The suit contends that since the assets "cannot be divided without great loss" they should be sold and the proceeds divided.

After the sale, the facility began operating as Rivercrest Lighthouse LLC in August 2018 and is now known as Rivercrest Lighthouse Marina Restaurant and Lounge, located at 375 West Vaughn Drive, Madison.

Super Salami!

Oberto had sponsored the Miss Madison for 16 seasons. The two parted ways after the 2015 season after winning six National High Points Championships. Much of that success came with this particular boat, which was built in 2007.

Oberto's sponsorship means that Miss Madison Racing will field two boats for the final three races of the 2019 season. Jimmy Shane will continue to drive the team's primary hull sponsored by HomeStreet Bank. Shane has won the first two races of the season. (Photos courtesy Owen Blauman)

Thurston throws 2 innings in win

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's Ryan Thurston pitched two strong innings in the Gary SouthShore RailCats' 5-1 win at home over Fargo-Moorhead in an American Association game on Wednesday.

Thurston, a left-hander, entered the game in the eighth inning with Gary holding a 5-0 lead and finished out the game. He allowed one earned run on three hits over the two innings while striking out three and walking none.

For the season, Thurston is 3-0 in 21 appearances with a 2.70 ERA. In 30 innings pitched, he has allowed 12 runs — just nine earned — on 25 hits with 26 strikeouts and 15 walks.

Gary, now 24-33 and in 5th place in the North Division, hosts Chicago for three games starting Friday.

Reds' slide continues, drop games to Cubs, Cardinals

By MATT CARLSON
Associated Press

CHICAGO — Yu Darvish finally had a reason to celebrate at Wrigley Field.

Darvish tossed six innings of two-hit, shutout ball to earn his first win at the iconic ballpark as a Cub and lead Chicago past the Cincinnati Reds 5-2 on Wednesday.

Kris Bryant and Addison Russell homered for the only hits off Sonny Gray (5-6) as Chicago won for the fifth time in six games.

Entering Wednesday, Darvish was 0-5 with a 5.50 ERA in 13 starts at home after signing a six-year, $126 million contract with Chicago in February 2018.

So when the normally stoic right-hander fanned Yasiel Puig for his final out in the sixth and a runner on base, Darvish turned to the outfield, hollered and pumped his fist.

"It's amazing," said Darvish, who kept the game ball and joked he might give it to his wife. "I was always looking for that first win. Puig is good hitter, if I give up a homer it's going to be a tie game, so I threw 100 percent."

On Wednesday, the right-hander was sharp for the second straight start and didn't allow a hit until catcher Juan Graterol lined a soft single to center with two outs in the fifth.

"He kind of had no-hit stuff," manager Joe Maddon said. "I was thinking that, but so did their guy. Again, Yu just keeps trending in the right direction."

Darvish (3-4) also won for the first time anywhere since April 27 at Arizona as he struck out seven, walked none and hit two batters. The right-hander had 12 no-decisions and a loss in his previous 13 starts.

Darvish hasn't allowed a run in 13 2/3 innings. He credits mixing his pitches differently and a confidence level of "almost 120 percent" as keys to his turnaround.

"I don't need anything right now," he said.

Jason Heyward drove in two insurance runs with a double as the NL Central leaders took two of three from the Reds to win just their second series since sweeping St. Louis on June 7-9.

Craig Kimbrel pitched a perfect ninth for his fourth save in five chances.

Gray nearly matched Darvish, allowing just two hits — Bryant's and Russell's drives — while striking out eight and walking none through six innings. Nick Senzel and Puig drove in runs in the eighth off Brandon Kintzler, but the Reds lost for the sixth time in eight games.

Gray has a 1.65 ERA in his past four starts for the last-place Reds.

"I mean, ultimately, where we are, the only thing that matters is to win games," Gray said. "It's irrelevant if you're not winning games."

Before Graterol's hit, Darvish retired 14 of the first 16 Cincinnati batters. The righty hit Scooter Gennett with a pitch with two outs in the second, then struck Derek Dietrich on the right knee to lead off the fifth.

Dietrich was replaced by pinch runner Phillip Ervin after being plunked for the league-leading 21st time and fourth time in three games in Chicago.

Bryant hit his 20th homer and went deep for the second straight day when he lofted the first pitch he saw into the left-center bleachers for a 1-0 Chicago lead.

Senzel was thrown out at the plate in the sixth by third baseman David Bote when he tried to score on Eugenio's Suárez's sharp chopper.

Heyward's two-run double off David Hernandez in the seventh made it 4-0. After the Reds closed to 4-2, Anthony Rizzo singled in a run in the bottom of the inning.

HEY YUUUU!

As Darvish racked up strikeouts, the crowd of 37,260 bellowed "Yuuuu" more loudly with each one.

"Believe me he's into it," Maddon said. "The little smirks, the smiles. I really anticipate he's going continue on this rise."

CINCINNATI KID

The Reds placed closer Raisel Iglesias on the three-day paternity list and selected Graterol's contract from Triple-A Louisville. Iglesias is 2-8 with 17 saves in 19 chances. Graterol started Wednesday and batted eighth.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Reds: C Curt Casali (right knee inflammation) didn't start for the second straight game, and may be headed to the IL, manager David Bell said. . Kyle Farmer, hit in the mask by two foul tips on Tuesday, was scheduled to be evaluated on Thursday under concussion protocol. He was listed to start Wednesday behind the plate before Graterol arrived. . CF Senzel left the game in the bottom of the eighth with left hamstring tightness . LHP Amir Garrett, on the IL since July 5 (left lat strain), threw 20 pitches off the mound at Wrigley Field before the game and will soon be activated or go on a rehab assignment.

Tuesday
Cardinals 7, Reds 4

CINCINNATI (AP) — Tommy Edman expected to see a breaking ball on the first pitch of his sixth-inning at-bat, and he didn't waste it.

The St. Louis rookie snapped a tie with his first career grand slam and the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Cincinnati Reds 7-4 Thursday night for their fifth win in six games.

All-Star Paul DeJong hit a two-run homer in the fifth, and Edman broke it open an inning later with a slam against Robert Stephenson's slider.

"I figured Stephenson would try to spin me," Edman said. "I'd watched how he'd pitched to the other batters. He left one out over the plate."

The slam came one pitch after the Reds just missed what would have been an inning-ending double play. Stephenson retired pinch-hitter Yairo Muñoz on a bases-loaded fly to right fielder Yasiel Puig, and Puig's throw home kept Matt Wieters at third. Catcher Juan Graterol's throw to first almost caught Kolten Wong off the bag, but Wong got his hand to the base a split-second before Joey Votto's tag. Votto had to scramble back to the bag from his cutoff position.

"Kolten got out there a little bit, but he could afford to do that based on where was," Cardinals manager Mike Shildt said.

Stephenson (2-2) allowed four hits and five runs while getting just two outs

"Robert was throwing strikes for the most part," manager David Bell said. "Robert's been pitching well. I would use him again in that spot. We don't want to rely on the same guys, and Robert has elite stuff."

Eugenio Suarez hit a solo home run in the first inning and added a sacrifice fly in Cincinnati's two-run third as the Reds built a 3-0 lead.

DeJong got St. Louis on the board in the fifth with his first homer since June 16 and 14th this season.

"That was a big swing," Shildt said. "We needed it. He needed it. It swung the momentum back to us."

Edman's blow gave Dakota Hudson the win. Hudson (9-4) gave up six hits and three runs with two walks and three strikeouts in five innings. He's 7-1 over his last 11 starts. Hudson also hit a batter.

Roark sparked their two-run third with a leadoff double. He pitched five innings, allowing five hits and two runs with two walks, a hit batter and six strikeouts — three of Paul Goldschmidt, including to end the fifth with runners on first and third with two outs.

The Reds are 2-5 since the All-Star break and dropped eight games behind the NL Central-leading Chicago Cubs

BIRTHDAY BASH

Suarez celebrated his 28th birthday with his third first-inning home run in Cincinnati's last four games and major league-leading ninth first-inning homer of the season. Milwaukee's Christian Yelich and Baltimore's Trey Mancini each have eight.

CRIPPLED CATCHERS

Catcher Curt Casali on Thursday went on the 10-day injury list with a right knee sprain. Simultaneously, catcher Kyle Farmer went on the seven-day concussion list. The moves left Cincinnati with three catchers on the IL. Graterol was promoted from Triple-A Louisville on Wednesday, and the Reds signed Ryan Lavarnway a day after he was released by Yankees.

FOWLER FOULUP

Cardinal Tyler O'Neill's second-inning steal of second became an out when Dexter Fowler was called for interference after he stepped across the plate while striking out.

THAT WAS QUICK

The Cardinals' Edmundo Sosa got his first major league hit with a bloop single to right with one out in the ninth, but it became a double play when Puig threw Harrison Bader out trying to go first-to-third and Suarez threw out Sosa trying to advance to second.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Cardinals: C Yadier Molina will wait at least three weeks before his right thumb tendon strain is re-evaluated. Molina has been on the 10-day IL since July 8.

Reds: OF Nick Senzel is expected to miss a couple of days but avoid the IL after leaving Wednesday's game with right hamstring tightness. ... RHP David Hernandez was placed on the 10-day IL with right shoulder fatigue.

UP NEXT

Cardinals: RHP Adam Wainwright's (6-7) 5.01 ERA in 30 career appearances against Cincinnati is his highest against any NL opponent.

Reds: RHP Tyler Mahle (2-10) set career highs by allowing 12 hits and 10 runs over 4-1/3 innings in his last start on Sunday at Colorado.

Conservancy searches for public's opinions

By PEGGY VLEREBOME
Special to the Courier

Oak Heritage Conservancy, which owns 13 nature preserves in southeastern Indiana, wants the public's opinions about what it does. The conservancy has posted a 12-question online survey on its website and its Facebook and Instagram pages.

To find the survey on the website, go to oakheritageconservancy.org and click on "Get Involved."

The last day to fill out a survey is Aug. 5.

In a press release, the conservancy summarized the kind of information it is seeking: "What do you want at nearby nature preserves – more trails? Easier parking? Interpretive signs? Guided hikes? And how can nature groups serve you – by offering more programs for families? More in-school or afterschool programs? Opportunities to volunteer in nature?"

Everyone who fills out the survey can enter to win a $25 gift certificate donated by the Off Broadway Taproom in Madison. The restaurant donated the gift certificate to encourage people to participate.

The survey was designed by Nolan Wicks, a Hanover College senior who is interning at the conservancy. His internship is part of Hanover's McManaman Internship Program through the college's political science department.

"Everyone should fill out the survey," Wicks said, "because it is not only beneficial to Oak Heritage, but also benefits you. This survey will help Oak Heritage better understand what the people in our communities want, how we can contribute to the communities we serve, and how Oak Heritage can best direct our efforts."

One of his tasks as an intern is to find out how Oak Heritage can better serve southeastern Indiana, the press release said. "He's been researching which communities have nature preserves and trails, and which areas still need those community resources," the press release said. "He's also looking at how other groups like Oak Heritage encourage people to get outside and enjoy their nature preserves."

Wicks, who is from Monrovia in Morgan County, is a Hanover football player, president of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity and academic honor roll student. He plans to go to law school after graduating from Hanover in 2020 and then practice environmental law.

"I wanted to intern at Oak Heritage Conservancy because I believe the environment is an essential resource that needs protected," he said. "This internship has given me a unique opportunity to not only broaden my understanding of land trusts, but also work for an organization that is making a local impact."

Paris Crossing Alumni met, awarded scholarships

The 48th Annual Paris Crossing High School Alumni Banquet was held on June 28, 2019, at the Pines Evergreen Room in Seymour with 130 alumni and guest attending. Registration and social hour began at 5 p.m. The annual gathering is represented by the three township schools of Lovett, Marion, and Paris Crossing. Dawn (Davis) Johnson and granddaughter Kate Johnson led the group in a song "God Bless America," with welcome by President Richard Young, prayer by Dawn (Davis) Johnson and dinner following.

Presentations of three $500 scholarships were made by Jane Kinder Reynolds and Sharon Hughes Galliher. The scholarships are awarded to graduating seniors who live in Lovett, Marion, and Montgomery Townships in Jennings County.

Receiving scholarships this year are Jonathan Kipper, son of David and Jennifer Kipper, who will attend Purdue University; Karlee Madinger, daughter of Paul and Ellen Madinger, who will attend Coastal Alabama Community College South; and Morgan Manning, daughter of Greg and Lauren Manning, who will be attend Purdue University. Since 1993, 58 deserving students have received these awards.

Any donations made to the scholarship fund through March 2020 will receive a 50 percent match. The goal is $50,000 for a perpetual fund providing scholarships for future graduating seniors. Contributions may be sent to Paris Crossing alumni, Mary Lou Nugent, 5130 North Kings Way, North Vernon, Indiana 47265.

Louise Malcomb of Jennings County Historical Society is researching Jennings County Schools and asks for any information, old yearbooks, photos, buildings, and classes to share for this project. Contact her at malcomb@indiana.edu or (812) 346-8989.

Lilly Endowment Scholarship application period now open

The 2020 Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship application period is now open and will end on August 30, 2019 at noon.

In Jefferson County, there is one four-year, full-tuition scholarship available. The chosen student would also receive a $900 yearly stipend for required books and eqipment. The remaining finalists will each receive $1,000 Scholar Awards from the Community Foundation.

To be eligible for the 2020 Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship, applicants must: reside in Jefferson County, Indiana; attend an accredited high school located within Jefferson County, Indiana (accredited by the State Board of Education or a national or regional accreditation agency recognized by the State Board of Education); be in the top 20 percent of their graduating class; be graduating from an accredited Indiana high school by June 30, 2019; intend to pursue a full-time baccalaureate degree at an accredited Indiana public or private nonprofit college or university; and have two letters of recommendation—one from a teacher and one from a source outside of the applicant's school system, such as an employer, volunteer coordinator, church leader, 4-H leader, etc.

Independent Colleges of Indiana, Inc. (ICI) administers the Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship Program on behalf of the Lilly Endowment. ICI is a nonprofit corporation that represents 30 regionally accredited degree granting, nonprofit, private colleges and universities in the state. The scholarships are the result of a statewide Lilly Endowment initiative to help Hoosier students reach higher levels of education in hope that they will consider pursuing occupations in Indiana upon graduation. There were 143 scholarships awarded statewide in 2019.

To apply or for more information about the Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship, visit https://cfmjc.org or contact Kelley Hoagland at (812) 274-0243 or kelleyh@cfmjc.org

Boyfriend texting a long-lost loved one

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: I have been dating my boyfriend for two years now. He had lost his fiancee three years before we began dating. The problem I am having is he still has his deceased fiancee's phone number saved in his phone. He sometimes texts her, but, of course, it goes nowhere. I did ask him about it but he said he does not do it too much anymore. I found out by accident that he texted her the other night. Should I be worried? He is very sensitive and I don't want to hurt his feelings, but it is morbid to me. What should I do? — I'm Concerned

Dear Concerned: In a TED Talk in November 2018, writer and podcaster Nora McInerny spoke about how, when people we love die, we don't "move on"; we simply move forward. It's a poignant, insightful, at times humorous talk, and I recommend finding it and watching it online. I thought of Nora's words while reading your letter. Your boyfriend has moved forward with his life, even as he still cares for the fiancee who lost hers. Though it might seem unusual for him to text her, it's not unhealthy, as long as it's not interfering with his life.

I get the impression that you two have a great relationship: You've been able to ask him about this topic without him becoming defensive; you're writing out of concern for his well-being, not out of jealousy or insecurity. With that level of openness and empathy, you can trust that you'll know if anything is truly wrong with him or between you two. In short, don't sweat it.

Dear Annie: Your response to "Unhappy Player," who was wondering how to "break up" with his or her bridge partner who was experiencing cognitive decline, was perfect. What only could have been better was if had been published on June 21 to coincide with the Alzheimer's Association's "Longest Day." The American Contract Bridge League partners with them.

When my wife, Mary, had a small incident (connected with cognitive decline), management forbade me from ever bringing her back. That was in early June, and by the end of July I was forced to move her to an assisted living memory care facility. Social isolation certainly escalated her decline. The story is chronicled at https://bridgefeed.acbl.org/the-longest-day-hits-home. — Richard O.

Dear Richard: I appreciate your sharing your personal story so that others might learn the importance of empathy in such situations. Thank you bringing attention to the Longest Day. Readers can learn more at http://www.alz.org/thelongestday.

Dear Annie: My husband and I had a precious loved one passed away a while ago, and through the years they had bought a lot of military clothing and accessories through military clothing and Army surplus stores online.

We want to sell this stuff as we no longer have room for all of it. We live in a very small area and so far no one wants all this stuff; even thrift stores don't want it. Any suggestions on what to do or reputable websites that would buy this would be greatly appreciated! — Too Patriotic

Dear Too Patriotic: Online resale platforms such as eBay and Etsy will be your best allies in finding new homes for this surplus of Army surplus gear. Both platforms are reputable and have built-in security and fraud-prevention measures that offer you means of recourse should someone not pay for the item. You might also look into sending the items to a textile recycling organization, such as the American Textile Recycling Service; visit atrscorp.com to learn more about contributing clothes and even hosting your own donation box.

"Ask Me Anything: A Year of Advice From Dear Annie" is out now! Annie Lane's debut book – featuring favorite columns on love, friendship, family and etiquette – is available as a paperback and e-book. Visit http://www.creatorspublishing.com for more information. Send your questions for Annie Lane to dearannie@creators.com.

Raker Reunion

The Raker Family Reunion will be July 27 at the Major Samuel Woodfill American Legion Post No. 9 shelter at Jefferson Street and U.S. 421. The reunion begins at 11 a.m. and lunch will be at 12:30 p.m. All descendants of the Raker family are invited, as well as the descendants of the related families of Buescher, Obertate, Strautmann, Titkemeyer, Uhlmansiek, Bulthaup, Diekmann, Thiemann, Detmer and others. Bring your family, food in a covered dish, lawn chairs and your drinks. Tableware, hot dogs and fried chicken will be provided. You can bring old pictures and anything about the family history to share.

BRIDGE

THE TOUGHEST DEAL OF THE WEEK

Edgar Quinet, a 19th-century French historian, poet and political philosopher, said, "Time is the fairest and toughest judge."

Most of this week's deals have been based on some sent to me by Steven Conrad of Manhasset, Long Island. This is the toughest. Can you judge how East and West can defeat three no-trump after West leads the spade 10?

North was right to jump straight to three no-trump. With no singleton or void, and no thoughts of slam, just go for the nine-trick game.

When the dummy comes down, South will feel optimistic, expecting to establish dummy's club suit and take nine or more tricks. Against many defenders, he would succeed. East will win the first trick with his spade ace and lead back his remaining spade. "Return partner's suit." But declarer will take at least 10 tricks: two spades, one heart, three diamonds and four clubs.

East needs to take some time to place the missing honor-cards. Dummy has 10 high-card points, East has 14, and South 15-17. That leaves at most one jack for West. Plugging away at spades is a waste of time. Is there a better suit to attack?

One's first reaction will be diamonds, but we just worked out partner has at most the jack there. How about hearts?

What? Lead away from the king into dummy's ace-queen? Are you crazy? But think about it. East loses a heart, wins a club, loses a heart, wins a club and cashes the heart king-jack to defeat the contract. East takes one spade, two hearts and two clubs.

If you spotted that, well done!
